

Miss Kym's MUSIC Place

A Children's Web Series Created by Kimberly Stewart

Miss Kym's Music Place is a children's web series created by Kimberly Stewart that combines puppetry, music, and components of early childhood development. It follows the daily lives of siblings C.J. and CoCo Brown as they interact with their family, friends, and community.

The series focuses on storylines that educate, entertain, and amplify children's cultural diversity. Music is an integral element of the show as research has proven that it has many benefits for children, including exposing them to cultural diversity and helping them learn to express themselves and think more broadly about ideas.

Kimberly's aim is for every child who watches Miss Kym's Music Place to feel empowered to explore their creativity, embrace their individuality, and find a point of reference with which they identify.

PREMISE

6-year-old C.J. and 4-year-old CoCo live with their parents, Mr and Mrs. Brown, in a multi-story apartment building in a metropolitan city in the USA. The first floor of the building is home to the Music Place, a music school where CJ, CoCo, and several other children in the building take music lessons. Miss Kym is the teacher and owner of the school as well as a resident of the building. The residents of the building are a tight knit group of families and friends who support one another and work together to find resolutions when conflicts arise.
